Cold Steel or Death.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count on the marvelous power of Electric Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at W. A. D'Alemberte's drug store.

At Jacoby's.

Four different men were trying to talk to Jacoby, all at once, the other day when a NEWS man dropped in to get an advertisement he had been promising. "It's no use, my friend," he exclaimed. "You can see for yourself how things are. Look around, and if you see anything that will do for an ad., put her in, but don't wait for me to write it up; I simply can't do it." THE NEWS man looked around and "found something"—here is part of it, the rest was packed away in the big warehouse next door, or stacked up in shelves and piles, up to the ceiling:

THE NICARAGUA CANAL

Has Been the Pet Scheme of Senator Morgan.

HIS HOPE APPROACHES FRUITION.

For the First Time He Is Compelled to Fight For His Seat—Antique Indian Art—A Globe Trotter—New Senators Preside.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Senator Morgan of Alabama expects to see a great project which he has advocated for many years finally under way before his present term in the senate ends, and if he should be re-elected, to see it well high completed during his public career. He has been identified with the Nicaragua canal project for so many years that it has become to him one of his pet schemes. He has seen obstacle after obstacle removed, and now he thinks there is little in the way of success. It was some gratification to him to see one of the last obstacles—the Clayton-Bulwer treaty removed by the negotiation of a new convention between Great Britain and the United States, although he never thought that stood in the way, even though it was advanced by some of the opponents as a reason why the canal could not be built without the consent of Great Britain. Senator Morgan is now in his seventy-sixth year, and he is as painstaking in his legislative work as ever. There is something grand to see a man like him, a man who has seen so much and who has been so long in public life, struggling with a great project which he believes is so thoroughly meritorious and giving his best thought and energy to the work. When in this connection, it is known that he is making the first real effort he has ever had for the senate, it awakes the sympathies of all who know him well in his favor; consequently on every hand is heard the wish that he may be successful in the campaign in November.

Indian Antique Art.
Max Pracht, a special agent of the general land office, has presented to Commissioner Sherman some antiques which he found in his travels about New Mexico. At present he is stationed at Santa Fe, but his duty calls him to various parts of the territory. On one of his recent trips he came across an old church disused and falling into decay. Prowling about inside, he found two pictures painted on cedar boards and another board upon which a representation of the crucifix was carved. The paintings as well as carvings show unmistakable evidences of being Indian work. The pictures are of the Virgin, the colors are those used by the Indian in dyes and paints, while the form and expression are characteristic of Indian drawing. It is supposed that the paintings are copies of pictures brought to New Mexico by the Spaniards. The church, Mr. Pracht learned, was more than 300 years old. The cedar boards used must have been carved out of trees many years ago, as there has been no cedar in that section for years. Mr. Pracht does not know how old the articles are, but says they are certainly in the antique class.

Of Extreme Tastes.

I met a man who traveled much at one of the receptions in Washington, and in the course of the conversation he said: "Do you know who is occupying the house built by Robert Louis Stevenson in Samoa? Well, it is a German traveler, who is supposed to be eccentric. He has been about the world a great deal and finally conceived the fancy that if he could find the right kind of a place he would settle down. Spending a time at Woodstock, Siberia, he said this Russian resort was the ideal place for a permanent home, and he built a handsome residence, where he lived for a few years. Then he began to travel again, and which he

It quiets the nerves, improves the appetite and makes rich, pure blood. It cures all forms of stomach disorder, such as indigestion, constipation and dyspepsia. arrived at Hamburg he decided that the German resort was what he wanted and built a home. But he did not remain. A few years later he was living in a house he had built in Hongkong. Then again the desire for travel seized him, and after a few years globe trotting he stopped at Apia, Samoa. This is his last home, but from what has taken place in the past I would not be surprised to hear of him at some point in South America or Greenland.

New Senators Preside.

Senator Frye, as presiding officer of the senate, frequently relinquishes the chair to different senators for an hour or two each day. I observe that, while he sometimes calls the older men to preside temporarily, for the most part he gives the new senators the preference. This it is observed that Senators Beveridge, Depew, McMillan, Tallaferro, Culberson, Kern, Scott, Foster, McComas and Quarles are often in the big chair which has been made especially for the president of the senate. It is not at critical times or when knotty parliamentary questions are being decided that Senator Frye leaves the senate to these younger senators, but when the debate is moving along easily and there is little possibility of the necessity arising for an interpretation of the intricate senate rules. In the senate little or no discrimination is made as to the politics of the man selected to preside. Men are taken from both sides without apparent regard to their politics. In the house it is different. Unless it be while the house is listening to debates it is seldom that a man of the opposite politics to the speaker is chosen for presiding officer either in the house or committee of the whole.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup furnishes most substantial comfort and relief to consumptives; it works most remarkable cures. Don't despair. Relief can certainly be had; a cure is possible with this wonderful remedy.

The Lecture

—OF—
GEN. JOHN B. GORDON,

"The Last Days of the Confederacy."

To be Delivered at the Opera House, Monday, February 19,

is said to be the finest ever delivered on the American stage. His recital of thrilling war stories cannot be excelled by any living orator. It is hardly probable that the citizens of Pensacola will ever have another opportunity of hearing this distinguished orator and Confederate soldier. You will never regret hearing him. You will always regret it if you do not hear him this time.
